National League for Nursing

Two new tests are available from NLN's Evaluation Service:

1. A new Comprehensive Achievement Test in Maternal-Child Nursing Form 964. This test has been prepared in terms of expected outcomes of basic baccalaureate degree programs and the norms are based on scores of students in these programs. The test is available only to baccalaureate degree programs. It does not replace the separate tests in Obstetric Nursing and Nursing of Children nor the previous Comprehensive Achievement Test in Maternal and Child Nursing, Form 658.
2. An Anatomy and Physiology Test, Form 464. This test emphasizes Physiology. Only about one-fifth of the questions are on pure Anatomy.

NLN Achievement Tests

The NLN Evaluation Service during October 1964 issued a list which indicates NLN Achievement Tests currently available for use in Schools of Professional Nursing. The list shows that during 1963 and 1964 the following tests were replaced by new forms: 1. Anatomy and Physiology Test Form 464. 2. Chemistry Test Form 963 and Communicable Disease Nursing Test Form 863. The NLN Evaluation Service suggests that you return old forms of these tests to the NLN office and that you check carefully to be sure that you are not using achievement test materials associated with outdated forms which do not appear on this list. "The continued use of an obsolete test, after a new test is available, is of dubious value in assessment of student attainment and may even be harmful if students believe that obsolete material is current." Reports on obsolete forms cannot be provided by the NLN.

University of Kansas Medical Center, Kansas City, Kansas
